Coal Preserves
and Coal-Pickles

If you want the best home-made pickles next winter, you ought to speak to your wife about putting them up now.

If your "better half" is a far-sighted lady she ought to speak to you now about putting in next winter's

Coal

Because now's the best time for both—if you insist on both being good.

But if you don't speak to her and she doesn't speak to you before next winter, you are apt to be without pickles for the pantry—and she's going to be in too many pickles about the coal bin.

DAIL ACTS HOPEFULLY

Reply to Lloyd George to Take Time Although De-

SINN FEIN WOULD FIGHT

Attitude Is to Get Sympathy
Which Will Help it if Truce Is Broken.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

New York Herald Bureau,
London, Aug. 28.

The hoisting of a home rule flag—a green banner—by fanatical Moplahs in Southern India is likely to have a profound and sinister influence on the course of Irish negotiations.

Notwithstanding this, those closest to the Irish negotiations here continue to be hopeful, and declare they have good grounds for their hopes. But the conversion of the fanatical outbreak in Malabar into a political movement, with an invitation to the Nationalist leader, Gandhi, and others to join the Malabar rebels against British domination, crystallizes just that action in the Eastern Empire which some of Premier Lloyd George's advisers already have predicted against his programme of granting too much in the face of a campaign of violence in Ireland.

While the revolt in India undoubtedly will harden the British Cabinet against any further concessions to Ireland, it also will have its effect in Dublin.

Confirming information that there are forces in the Sinn Fein anxious to relapse into what to them is a happy state of martyrdom, Stephen Gwynn, writing in the Dublin Observer to-day, says:

"I construe the Sinn Fein's reply as meaning that it has decided to fight rather than accept any terms England at present is likely to offer, and is concerned only with two matters—first, to base its action on grounds which in the abstract will gain general acceptance, and, second, to fix on Great Britain the necessity of denouncing the truce or with the odium of breaking it."

Mr. Gwynn further remarks that if the radical Sinn Feiners were asked, "Wouldn't the enforcement of your demand for strict self-determination ruin British rule in India?" they would answer, "So much the better."

This had been written before the latest news came from Malabar. Despite the moral stiffening in the lines of both sides, attention is called to the fact that the actual developments of the last session of the Dail Eireann, stripped of bellicose verbiage, are extremely hopeful and significant. Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein, who was chosen Minister of Foreign Affairs in the De Valera Cabinet, will have direct charge of any further negotiations. He is recognized not only as one of the strongest but as one of the most practical men in the Irish Republican Cabinet.

Another hopeful sign is that Erskine Childers, a fiery apostle of intellectualism, most irreconcilable of all Sinn Fein members, a man credited with high mind, but of still necked dogma, and a Griffith was the chief republican leader there, was not named to the present Irish Republican Ministry.

Both of these changes are considered significant that the Dail Eireann is in a position to come to grips with Mr. Lloyd George and will make a real effort to accommodate the divergent elements to the pure logic of geographical propriety and political necessity.

With Premier Lloyd George away for a holiday, it seems likely that the Dail Eireann Cabinet will not hurry with its new statement. While delay is still dangerous, in that the truce may be broken by hot heads on either side at any time, it is considered helpful for the Dail Eireann to have a few days, or even a few weeks, in which to think things over after the exhausting campaign of participating in the first free meeting of an Irish Parliament in 160 years.

IRISH FARMERS THINK
SINN FEIN WILL YIELD

Business Men Also Get Ready for a Big Peace Boom.

DUBLIN, Aug. 28.—Apparently there is little apprehension here among the business men and farmers that the war will be resumed. They are going on with business and repairing the damage done during the fighting and getting ready for what they expect will be a big boom when an agreement between the Imperial Government and the Irish republicans is reached.

Some of the business men, claiming to have inside information, declare that Sinn Fein plenipotentiaries will be in London before the end of the week, or, at any rate, that the Dail Eireann Cabinet, which has been announced by that time that it is ready to accept Premier Lloyd George's invitation for a conference at his official residence in Downing street, London.

Manston House, where the Sinn Fein parliament was in session last week, was deserted to-day. Politicians and their camp followers took advantage of one of the last week ends of the summer and went into the country.

Dputies of the Dail Eireann held a big open air picnic at Glendalough, twenty-four miles from Dublin. Arthur Griffith was the chief republican leader there. Eamon de Valera passed the week end, as has been his custom recently, in the monastic retreat, near Blackrock.

CRUISE TO END THURSDAY.
Six hundred naval reservists, who have been on a two weeks annual cruise, will return to port on Thursday and will go through a final drill before dismissal. The men have been on eight Eagle boats and three submarine chasers and have cruised the coasts of Maine, Delaware, New Jersey and Virginia.

BODIES IN CITY OF DEATH

No Tombstones Mark Spots Where Hundreds of Greeks and Armenians Fell in Aidin in Appalling Massacre of 1919.

By the Associated Press.
AIDIN, Asia Minor, Aug. 10 (Delayed).—One of the saddest and most tragic of all war memorials in the Near East is the ruined city of Aidin, sixty miles southeast of Smyrna. It is literally a vast sepulchre of the dead. Here hundreds of innocent Greek and Armenian women, children and priests lie in nameless graves, victims of massacre by the Turks in the summer of 1919.

The broken columns of a thousand shattered homes are the mute witnesses of the martyrdom of the population. Although two years have passed since they were sacrificed, no tombstone, no cross, no wreath marks the place where they fell. Their whitening bones form a part of the crumbling masonry and earth.

The silence of the place is oppressive. The town presents an appalling spectacle of desolation and destruction, which has its counterpart only in the ruined cities of France. However, the people of Aidin were vouchsafed no chance of escape. They were brutally slain by the Turks when the Greek army had withdrawn. Many of the victims were burned to death.

Through the dark and debris strewn alleys sombre women and girls in mourning move like specters. All have lost relatives in the fearful massacre. Their faces tell a story of poignant suffering and anguish. Some of them have lost their reason.

TWO BODIES FOUND IN WRECKED AIRSHIP

Lieut.-Com. Emory Coll, U. S. N., and A. D. Pettitt Killed in Hull of the ZR-2

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Aug. 28.—The bodies of Lieut.-Com. Emory Coll, U. S. N., and A. D. Pettitt, a riser, who were killed in the fall of the dirigible ZR-2 at Hull last week, were recovered to-day during salvage operations on the hull of the airship, according to an announcement made this evening by the Air Ministry.

Lieutenant-Commander Coll's home was Marietta, Ohio. He was to have been executive officer of the airship when it was turned over to the United States Navy. Pettitt lived in New York.

The Air Ministry reports that a considerable portion of the airship has been salvaged.

A parachute was found attached to the body of Lieutenant-Commander Coll. American bills amounting to $2,000, photographs, various papers and a gold mounted watch were found in Lieutenant-Commander Coll's pockets.

The body of Chief Rigger Pettitt was found in a bunk. Apparently he was asleep when killed.

Much wreckage from the airship was recovered late to-night. This will be examined to-morrow morning.

HULL, Aug. 28.—"If anything happens, bury me at sea." This remark was made by Lieutenant-Commander Emory W. Coll, U. S. N., before he undertook the flight aboard the ZR-2, to his wife, an English girl, he married less than a year ago.

She confided to American visitors, with whom she has been immensely popular, that her husband, as an old naval officer, made her promise that if anything went amiss with the ZR-2 she would respect his wishes.

When the remaining Americans return to the United States one of their number will be a ship's mascot, a frisky kitten, who could not be found when the party was made up for the fatal flight.

Two officials of the American Graves Registration Service are arriving here to-day from Paris to supervise the embalming of the bodies.

During the salvaging operations on the ZR-2 to-day what Hungary to Austria, the control car of the dirigible was raised to the surface but fell back into the water again.

It is stated that mine sweeping operations would be adopted for the salvaging of the wreck of the airship and the recovery of the missing bodies.

A memorial service will be held in Old Trinity Church next Thursday for the American and British naval men who were killed in the fall of the ZR-2. The service will be attended by the Mayor and Lord Curzon, and representatives of the British and American air forces. The Archbishop of York has been requested to conduct the service.

PULHAM, England, Aug. 28.—Virtually the entire staff of the Pulham air station, consisting of about 200 officers and men, today observed a day of mourning to church to-day and participated in a special religious mass held for the men killed in the ZR-2 disaster. Among the officers attending the ceremony was Major-General Frederick H. Sykes, who raised and commanded the military wing of the Royal Flying Corps.

AUSTRIA ADDS 350,000

Burgenland, Producer for Vienna, to Be Taken Over.

VIENNA, Aug. 28.—The ceremony of the transfer of the little strip of territory known as West Hungary to Austria will take place to-morrow as provided for by the peace treaties. It will be known hereafter as Burgenland. After the transfer the Government will ask the powers to permit a plebiscite to enable the inhabitants of Burgenland to solve disputed territorial questions.

Burgenland has an area of about 1,700 square miles and a population of 350,000. Its transfer caused great indignation among the Hungarians, although the territory was an insignificant fraction of the vast Austro-Hungarian monarchy. The territory is intimately bound up with the names of the Esterhazy, Szecseny and Palkfy. One of the historic family seats in Burgenland is Porcsenitz Castle, perched on an isolated chalk hill, the home of the Esterhazys.

The territory is almost at the gates of Vienna. Before the war it supplied the capital with a large amount of milk, fruit, vegetables, fowls and eggs.

It is estimated with the addition of the produce of Burgenland Austria will be able to cut down her annual imports from abroad by about 20,000 tons of cereal, 25,000 tons of potatoes and 1,500 tons of meat. The value of the produce of the district is estimated at about $7,000,000 annually.

REBELLION GROWS
IN BRITISH INDIA

Its Area Extends, Insurgents in Calicut District Increasing to 15,000.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Aug. 28.—The rebels in the Calicut district have increased to 15,000 and the area of the rebellion has been extended, says a despatch to the Daily Mail from Allahabad. The expectation of famine is due to disorganization in trade and communication.

A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Bombay says the whole of the beautiful forest tract surrounding the Nilambur Palace has been laid waste and every Hindu house in the district looted. One of the rebel leaders has established himself in the palace as ruler.

Evidence is accumulating, says the despatch, that the success of the rebels in obtaining arms and munitions was due to treachery of individual members of the native Indian police and former Sepoys.

The India office reports that the entire disturbed area of Malabar, where the natives have begun an uprising, is now threatened with famine. Martial law has been applied to the towns of Walavanad, Ponnani, Ernad, Calicut, Wynad and Karamnirad.

Ponnani is at the mouth of the Ponnany River, thirty-eight miles south by southeast from Calicut, and has a population of 10,000.

The chief trouble makers are the Moplah fanatics, who appear to be proclaiming home rule in all the disturbed areas. They have hoisted their emblem, a green flag, at Malabar.

Gandhi, the nationalist leader, has been invited by the Kerala Provisional Congress Committee to visit Malabar at the earliest possible moment in an endeavor to pacify the Moplahs.

A despatch from Manjeri says that rioters have felled trees across the roads throughout the whole district and that bridges and carts have been destroyed to obstruct troop movements.

GENEVA, Aug. 28.—The Council of the League of Nations will meet to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock and will take up as its first work the Silesian question, referred to it by the Inter-Allied Supreme Council.

Viscount Ishii, President of the Council of the League, said to-day that he personally would present the case, as the time was too short, after the declaration of Count Quinones de Leon to serve, to choose another person to present the report.

Viscount Ishii will make a simple presentation to the Council of the documents turned over to him by the Supreme Council. An early decision on the question is not expected, as the members will require time to study the papers.

SILESIAIS ARE TIRED OF PROPAGANDISTS
Conflicts Between Germans and Poles Decreasing.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
Copyright, 1921, by THE NEW YORK HERALD.
New York Herald Bureau,
Berlin, Aug. 28.

The disorders and conflicts between the Germans and the Poles in Upper Silesia are decreasing after the terrorism, plundering and misery which followed the propaganda and the uprising there, both Germans and Poles from the Province told a correspondent for THE NEW YORK HERALD.

A small farmer near Rosenberg who voted for Poland in the plebiscite asserted that many Silesians were shocked at the excesses of the destruction of property and the number of murders committed and now they would not join the agitators from either side in the controversy.

Both the Poles and the Germans in Upper Silesia keep their local defence organizations, but they remain quiet. The natives also realize that the untruthfulness of the propaganda carried on there was largely responsible for the uprising.

"Polish agents came to me and promised me twenty acres of land and a cow for a large estate I owned. I voted Poles," one Polish farmer said. "But when Poles came and destroyed the farm, my neighbors and damaged mine and so on, I saw that such promises could not make good their promises."

The Upper Silesians now resent the presence in the Province of agitators from either Berlin or Warsaw. Both factions agree that there would be a common gain resulting from a cessation of propaganda by both sides.

Reports that Polish sympathies still are strong there but the early unbounded enthusiasm has been followed by cool considerations which are not altogether flattering to either the Germans or the Poles.

PEACE PACT MAY OMIT CLAUSE ON WAR TRIAL
Parley on U. S. - Hungarian Treaty Delayed a Week.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 28.—Clauses concerning the League of Nations covenant, international labor legislation and war criminals are to be left out of the Hungarian-American peace treaty, according to the best information obtainable here.

Importance is attached to the latter phase because it has been reported that the Council of Ambassadors was preparing a list of war criminals and considering the inclusion in it of Admiral Horthy, Regent of Hungary. In view of the bombardment of the Adriatic coast while he was commander of the Austro-Hungarian Navy. It was said that the Italians and Jugo-Slavs were pressing the council for the placing of Admiral Horthy's name on the list.

The formal preliminary discussion of the treaty, which has been in progress between Foreign Minister Banffy and Grant Smith, United States Commissioner, has been interrupted and will not be resumed until the text of the treaty is ready for presentation. This, it is believed, probably will be in about a week.

USE U. S. FLAG TO HELP SALES.
WARSAW, Aug. 28.—A resolution of protest against the use of the American flag for advertising purposes has been adopted by the Warsaw chapter of the American Legion, a department of Poland. Members took this action after attention had been called to use of the flag made by some Warsaw merchants in their display windows to advertise American goods.

Legion representatives called upon Major E. E. Farnan, military attaché, who said the American authorities have been powerless to take any action. Members of the Legion now propose to call personally upon the merchants and explain that display of the American flag is not permitted in the United States for commercial purposes and make a request that the practice be discontinued.

GETTING RID OF REDS.
BERNESE, Aug. 28.—One hundred and sixty Russian Communists, among them several one time Commissars, are to be transported to the Czecho-Slovakian frontier, where, through the mediation of the Czech Government, they will be exchanged for Hungarians taken prisoner by the Russians during the war.

Hurries to Berlin to Check Strife Occasioned by Erzberger Slaying.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Aug. 28.—President Ebert to-morrow will preside over a Cabinet council which will consider the internal situation of Germany. Chancellor Wirth, in a speech to-day before the Catholic conference in Frankfurt, referred to the "passionate strife" with which the country is being shaken.

"I must return to Berlin immediately," the Chancellor added, "because I must keep my eyes open there to guard against disaster befalling the country as the result of recent occurrences, which fill us with horror."

It is semi-officially stated that Mathias Erzberger, who was assassinated Friday, will be buried Wednesday at Biberach, instead of in Berlin as was originally intended.

Socialists and Laborites are arranging for demonstrations throughout Germany against the "White Terror" for next Wednesday, in connection with the funeral of Herr Erzberger. It is said the members of the Leftist party intend to permit no militarist demonstrations in the future without carrying out counter movements.

Two students who had been arrested on suspicion of being connected with the assassination of Erzberger have been released.

SAYS TREATY REPEATS
'VERSAILLES VIOLENCE'

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—"We have swallowed the devil whole without considering the mixture we have drunk, but it is just as well we draw a line through the past," says Bernhard Dernburg, who was active in the United States as a German propagandist during the early part of the war, criticizing the German-American peace treaty, in the Tageblatt to-day.

"The treaty from beginning to end," he declares, "is without spirit or vitality. It is virtually a repetition of the Versailles violence."

"And For Their Tent—The Sky!"
ERNEST THOMPSON-SETON spoke at the luncheon of the New York Rotary Club on Thursday at Hotel McAlpin. For years
Mr. Seton has been read as the authority on the great outdoors, its forest dwellers and the silent green sentinels which so often inspire religion where other things fail.

The talk was on "Woodcraft" and Rotarians listened, carried back to the long-ago when a tree, a dog and a swimming hole was the trinity of bliss. They listened, too, with a joy that was mixed with pride, for on Tuesday, August 23rd, New York Rotarians were responsible for a "day of days" given to eighty underprivileged boys of New York.

Eight of the best known Boys' Clubs of the city proposed ten members each. The eighty youngsters, all athletically with the wonder in store for them, were driven to the estate of Mr. Thompson-Seton at Greenwich, Conn. On the way up they filled all aching voids with a substantial pocket lunch, provided by Rotarians. The afternoon was spent in informal instruction in Woodcraft, by Mr. Seton—then came the real camp-dinner, cooked over wood fires, brigand steaks and suchlike!

The crowning glory was a solemn Grand Council at which Mr. Seton presided as Grand Counselor, surrounded by very happy, food-filled councilors. After that, under the stars, Rotary cars whisked them back to New York.

This is the secret—the audience at the Rotary luncheon on Thursday was just as thrilled as the kid-one on Tuesday!—A. W.
